

Subscription Services

Our core service, the SAC Consulting Subscription, provides farmers and crofters guaranteed access at a reduced rate to local consultants for advice on all rural related subjects.

There are several levels of subscription for our farmer clients, including the Croft and Small Farm Subscription which is partly funded by Scottish Government through the Farm Advisory Service.

All subscription packages come with benefits which are exclusively for subscribers, including:

- Independent advice from local consultants*
- Discount on additional time with consultants
- Discount on other SAC Consulting services including SAF completion
- Unearthed monthly newsletter
- Unearthed Local quarterly newsletter
- Biannual Perspectives Magazine sent to your door
- Subscriber events
- Entry to SAC Consulting meetings
- Text and email alerts, reminders, and news
- Priority access for other services
- Technical notes

* The number of hours advice included in the package varies with the package chosen.

Your subscription will be serviced by a team of expert consultants in a local office who know the area you live and farm in and the challenges and opportunities you face. Our consultants give independent advice and backed by a wealth of industry research, connections, and knowledge.

Subscriptions can be used for all manner of advice from business management, arable, livestock, grassland, crofting, carbon, biodiversity, conservation, and everything in between. SAC Consulting is unique in having access to world-class research which we translate into on-the-ground application, as part of SRUC. In this way, we have national support and local delivery, tailored to you. We also have access to an independent laboratory for analysis of soil, feeds, and crops.

Our unique position ensures that we can provide tailored advice and a balanced view on the three key aspects of running a successful agricultural enterprise – food production, biodiversity gain and climate change mitigation.

With the challenges ahead for the industry, we believe the independent advice you receive through your subscription will be essential to ensure you have the knowledge and confidence to thrive and grow.
